

Film activate: Discovering true friendship

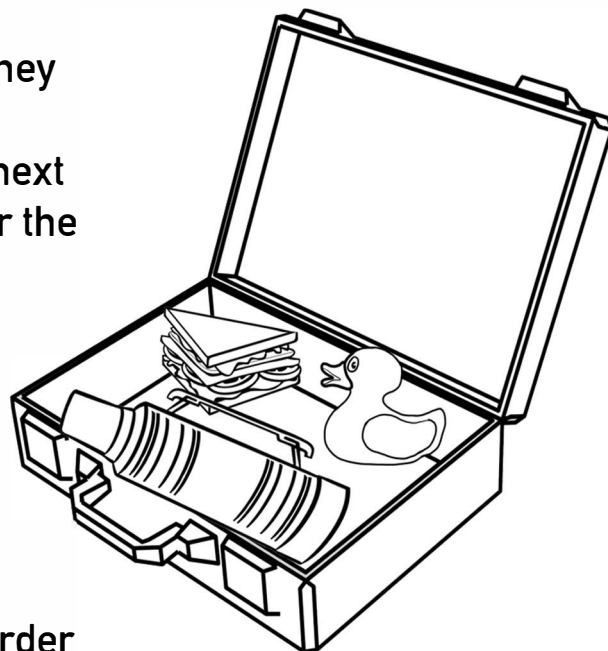

1

In this story, a boy finds a penguin at his door, which seems to be lost and rather sad, so the boy decides to row his new companion home to the South Pole. Along the way, the two experience exciting adventures, such as battling storms and encountering a giant octopus. They discover the meaning and value of true friendship.

These are the suitcases they prepared for the journey. Write "boy" or "penguin" next to each suitcase and color the contents inside.

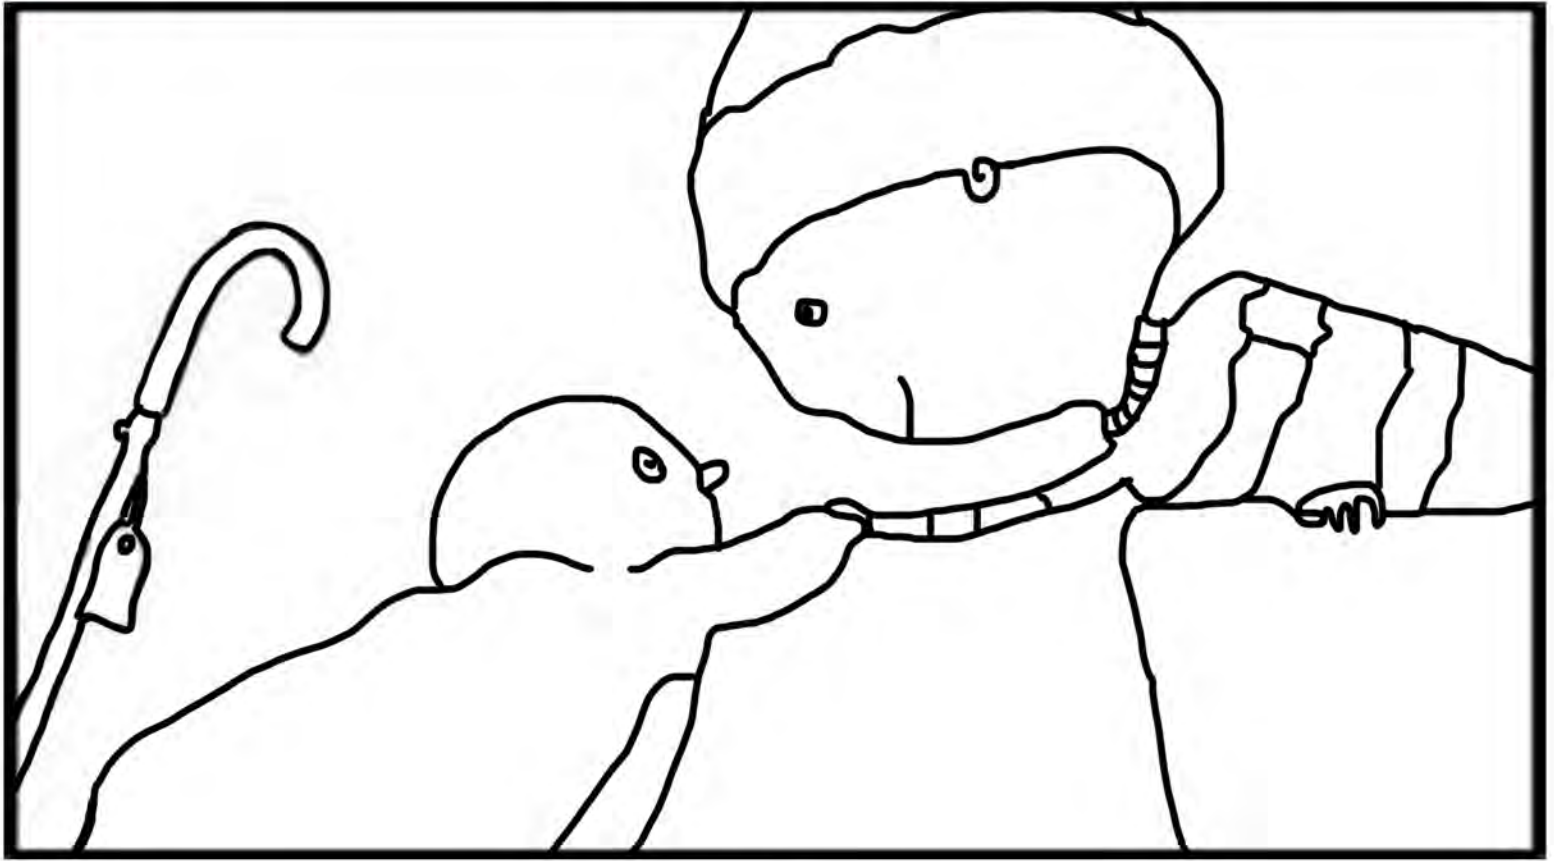

2

Toward the end of the film the narrator says, "It's harder than you think to say goodbye to someone who's become part of your life, especially, when you haven't noticed it happening." Do you have someone (human or not) in your life who has suddenly become special? Draw in the space next what he, she, or it looks like.

3

The boy and the penguin have found each other again. Can you color them in?

www.oliverjeffersworld.com

For questions, e-mail: lili@coralgablesmuseum.org